

BOY, TWENTY, SEEKS DIVORCE FROM HIS "FOLLIES" BRIDE

Didn't Know It, Husband
Says, When He Married
Peggy Udell.

ELKTON, Md., June 6.—Declaring he was too drunk to know he was getting married, John W. Montgomery, twenty, of Bellefonte, Pa., has sued to divorce Peggy Udell, a Ziegfeld "Follies" chorus girl.

Montgomery, on the stand, confined his testimony to the statement that when the marriage was performed in the early hours of Jan. 25, he was intoxicated and did not know anything about it. His brief statement was amplified by William Simons, a Philadelphia taxicab driver.

Simons said he drove Montgomery, Miss Udell and several others from Philadelphia to Elkton. They stopped at Wilmington, the driver said, and Montgomery and the girl tried to get married there, but failed.

They arrived in Elkton about 1 o'clock in the morning and began looking for a preacher. Simons went on. They found one, but he refused to perform the ceremony because Montgomery was drunk. Finally, the Rev. Daniel Forbes Lockertie, eighty-three, married them.

Simons testified Montgomery was so drunk during the ceremony that he kept his hat on all the time. He had no ring, but his bride took one from her finger and they were married with that. All through the ceremony, the driver declared, other members of the party danced and jeered behind the backs of the principals.

Simons added that before the marriage Miss Udell proposed a game of craps. The bones were rolled on the floor of the Elkton telephone exchange, Simons declares, and after it was all over Miss Udell had to lend Montgomery the money to pay for the license.

Heiress to Du Pont Millions Will Wed a Rhodes Scholar, Son of Norwalk Mail Carrier

Acquaintance Begun Aboard Liner Aquitania—
Family of Bride-to-Be Consents and Nuptials Are to Be This Month.

LONDON, June 6 (United Press).

The engagement is announced here of Miss Alicia du Pont, stepdaughter of Alfred I. du Pont, the ammunition millionaire of New York and Wilmington, Del., to Harold Glendenning, an American Rhodes scholar, whose home is in Norwalk, Conn. The wedding is set for June 28 in St. Paul's Knightsbridge.

Miss du Pont is eighteen years old and daughter of Mr. du Pont's second wife, Mrs. Alicia I. Bradford Maddox.

Miss du Pont, who has been in London since early in May, has spent the last two years in Europe, devoting herself to music and the culture of her voice at Nice, where Jean De Reszke has been her tutor.

GLENDENNING RANKS HIGH AS A SCHOLAR

Miss du Pont Is Also of a
Studious Bent—Families
Approve.

BRIDGEPORT, June 6.—The romance that has culminated in the engagement of Miss Alicia du Pont, daughter of Alfred du Pont of Wilmington, Del., to Harold Sanford Glendenning, son of Mrs. Percy H. Glendenning of No. 1 Cannon Street, Norwalk, announcement of which has just been made, began on the promenade deck of the Aquitania in September, 1920. It was learned from friends of the couple, Miss du Pont is to be married to Mr. Glendenning in London, June 28, and they will remain in Europe until June, 1923.

The marriage will unite one of the wealthiest American families with a family of plain New Englanders—honest, hard workers of moderate circumstances. Glendenning has been a student since the first day he rode with his late father, then a mail carrier, to the little North Centre school house in Norwalk. His grammar school course was finished with distinction, and his work since has been a continuous series of scholastic successes and honors.

Miss du Pont also has been a student, and her stay in Europe was due to the desire to complete her study of music. There, under the masters of the art, she found time to continue the acquaintance that began on the ocean voyage. The plan of Miss du Pont and Glendenning to marry was approved some time ago by both families, and only the formal announcement had been withheld.

Glendenning was born in Norwalk, and is twenty-four. He was graduated from the Norwalk High School in 1914 as the honor pupil of his class, and entered Dartmouth College in the fall of the same year. There he was graduated as winner of the Rhodes scholarship, entitling him to a three-year course at Oxford University.

At Dartmouth, Glendenning, then only twenty, received his bachelor of arts degree. The United States was at war, and the young man offered his services to the War Department and was assigned to duty at the du Pont smokeless powder plant at Carnegies Point, N. J., near Wilmington.

In September, 1919, Glendenning entered Columbia University and finished a one-year course, receiving a master's degree in June, 1920. The following October he sailed for Europe to enter upon his studies at Oxford, and has been in England since. Glendenning was one of the guests at a dinner given in England Sept. 26, 1920, by Lord Beaverbrook, of the British Cabinet.

He will complete his Oxford course for a Ph. D. and other degrees in June, next year, after which he will return to this country with his bride.

BRIDE TO BE IS DAUGHTER OF SECOND MRS. DU PONT.
WILMINGTON, Del., June 6.—The engagement of Miss Alicia du Pont to Harold Glendenning came as a great surprise to Wilmington society.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont are on a yachting cruise on Chesapeake Bay and could not be reached. One of Mr. du Pont's secretaries admitted, however, that he knew of the engagement.

Alicia du Pont is the nineteen-year-old daughter of the second wife of Alfred I. du Pont. The mother died about two years ago. She was a daughter of former Federal Judge E. P. Bradford.

TURKS EXPECTED TO HAMPER INQUIRY INTO ATROCITIES

Dr. Ward, Near East Agent,
Deported, Says They Will Cover Their Tracks.

Copyright, 1922 (New York Evening World)
by Press Publishing Company.

LONDON, June 6.—America's acceptance of the invitation to join the Allies in investigating Turkish and Greek atrocities in Asia Minor is welcomed in official quarters here. Despite reservations contained in the note of Secretary of State Hughes, it is felt here that the presence of American investigators will give the commission's findings a standing and weight which they would not possess without the co-operation of a country not involved in the Turko-Greek conflict.

As the British wish to begin the investigation as soon as possible, it is hoped the United States Government will appoint its members of the commission from the personnel already in the region involved who are familiar with local conditions.

liefs workers, deported from Harpoot by the Kemalist Turks, is sceptical of the amount of information the commission will be able to collect. Dr. Ward is on his way to the United States to report to the State Department. He expects to sail for New York next Monday.

"Assuming that the Turks allow the commission to enter," Dr. Ward explained to The World correspondent, "there is no doubt they will make the investigation as difficult as possible. The members of the commission probably will have to use automobiles and keep to the main roads in order to cover much territory.

"In that case the Turks will undoubtedly drive the Greek and Armenian Christians back to the hills. They also will try to get advance notice of when the commission will visit various villages and towns. If they know this they will bury the bodies, clean up the bones and scare the Christians into refusing to give the commission any information.

"The commission should be sent to Asia Minor as soon as possible so as not to give the Turks time to cover their tracks. The investigation should also avoid being a Turkish conducted affair, as Turkish guides would be sure to avoid the worst places.

"The moral prestige of the commission and whatever report it makes should do something to restrain the Turks from continuing their massacres."

During his stay in London Dr. Ward, who has brought with him a full report of his experiences and observations, will confer with Ambassador Harvey and the Earl of Balfour. In America his report will be made to Secretary of State Hughes and President Harding.
